For too many LGBTI students, attending school can be a frightening experience.

Many face harassment or mistreatment by colleagues or professors. These challenges are compounded in some cases by unsupportive families or friends back home.

Come and discuss strategies for building allies in the straight community to make your school and community safer. Learn how to engage families, friends and fellow students in a constructive discussion about your identity and enlist them as supporters.

PFLAG (formerly Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays) has forty years of experience building alliances between the Straight and LGBTI community.

PFLAG is the United States' largest organisation for parents, families, friends, and straight allies united with people who are lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender.
